The Parties recall the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization, and recognise that the violation of fundamental principles and rights at work cannot be invoked or otherwise used as a legitimate comparative advantage and that labour standards should not be used for protectionist trade purposes. The Parties also recognise that the comparative advantage of Parties must in no way be called into question.
4. The Parties recognise the important role of workers' and employers' organisations in protecting internationally recognised labour rights.
5. The Parties also recognise the goal of eliminating forced labour to promote inclusive and sustainable economic growth, productive employment, and decent work for all.
6. The Parties also recognise that the obligations under this Chapter related to labour rights and cooperation consider the different national circumstances, capacities, needs and levels of development, and respective national policies and priorities.

Article 20.3 Trade and Labour

1. The Parties recognise the sovereign right of each Party to determine and establish its own levels of domestic labour protection and its own labour priorities, and to establish, adopt, or modify its labour laws and policies accordingly, as appropriate, in a manner consistent with its international labour commitments, including those referred to in this Chapter.
2. Each Party shall strive to ensure that its labour laws and policies provide for and encourage sufficient levels of labour protection and shall strive to continue to improve those laws and policies with the goal of providing sufficient levels of labour protection.
3. In accordance with the ILO Constitution and the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work, each Party shall respect, promote, and realise in its laws, in good faith, the principles concerning the fundamental rights at work.
4. 7. Without prejudice to the sovereign right of each Party to determine and establish its own levels of domestic labour protection and its own domestic labour priorities, the Parties recognise that it is inappropriate to encourage trade or investment by weakening or reducing the protection afforded in their respective labour laws. Accordingly, the Parties shall not waive or otherwise derogate from, or offer to waive or otherwise derogate from, their respective labour laws in a manner that weakens or reduces the protection afforded in those laws in order to encourage trade or investment between the Parties.
8. Neither Party shall, through a sustained or recurring course of action or inaction, fail to effectively enforce its labour laws to encourage trade or investment between the Parties.
9. Nothing in this Chapter shall be construed to empower a Party's authorities to undertake labour law enforcement activities in the territory of the other Party.
